When the echo from the applause which followed Powers's three-bagger in the ninth inning died away yesterday afternoon the Indianapolis team had just as many runs as before the game was started-none. The Buffalo aggregation, however, had done much better, gathering in a pair of tallies during the progress of the game, and neither of the runs was earned. It was a pitchers' battle, and, omitting the large element of luck which followed the Bisons, Kellum had the best of it, but Amole had the satisfaction of administering a shut-NOTICE—The futeral services of the late Ben-jamin T. Thornton will be held at Bethel A. M. E. Church, on West Vermont street, at 2 p. m., Thursday, the 21st inst. All members of the G. U. O. of O. F. in good standing are out. Amole was as wild as an uncivilized fraternally invited to turn out. The procession will leave Odd Fellows' Hall, on Indiana avenue, at 1:20 p. m. By order of Lincoln Union Lodge withstanding all this, the Hoosiers were not permitted to score There was not an inning during the en tire game that Indianapolis did not have from one to three men left on bases, and this was owing to the puzzling work of Amole, who put them over at critical stages and the ball was sent to one of the men in the field. The spirits of the fans were raised frequently, and lowered just as often when a hit failed to come at a much needed time. Amole was especially effective in preventing the Indians from finding his curves when a hit would have meant a run. Three hits were credited to both teams. While Amole gave ten bases on balls, which availed nothing except anxiety for Indianapolis, Kellum passed but one man, and he made the circuit. The Hoosiers made but two errors, and they aided in giving the Bisons their other run, while Buffalo piled up three errors, and they were not costly.

DID ANY OLD THING. Several times the infielders of the visiting team booted and kicked the ball around, but were lucky in handling it quickly enough to throw out the runner. Shearon, in right field, made runs that would beat records and got under fly balls that looked to be safe. Halligan, in left, only had one chance offered him, and that came in the ninth, when he got in front of a line fly from Magoon's bat. Had the ball gone safe the complexion of the score would have been changed. The home players all tried hard enough to land a victory, but Dame Fortune smiled upon the men from the shores of Lake Erie and absolutely refused to even flirt with the Indians. To study the appended score will satisfy any fan that fate, fortune and luck were all with the Bisons. The playing of both teams was fast, Carey at first for Buffalo doing phenomenal work, and the Indianapolis fielders doing fast playing. Buffalo went to bat first, and the side was retired in one, two, three order. When Hogriever drew a pass it was thought the fun would start at once, but the enthusiasm was soon buried when Powers endeavored to sacrifice and put a fly ball in Amole's hands, resulting in a double play. Magoon then walked, as did also Seybold but Madison's hit to Atherton forced Seybold out at second.

BUFFALO'S TALLY. Buffalo made one in the second. Kellum gave Atherton four wide ones and sent him to first. Schrecongost lambasted an in shoot, sending it to right, which placed Atherton on third. Then Carey hit to Magoon, and while Schrecongost was being put out at second Atherton crossed the plate with a tally. Hallman forced Carey. and when Hallman tried to pilfer second Powers threw him out. Kelly raised the hopes again in the second by hitting for a base. Heydon attempted to sacrifice, and Kelly was caught at second. Hickey walked, but Kellum went out. Hogriever drew another pass, filling the bases. Powers was anxious to bring in a run or two, and did not wait for a good one. He batted the ball to Hallman, and Hogriever was forced at second. In the third, after two Hoosiers had been retired, Madison singled, but Kelly's foul out retired the side.

The fourth witnessed another grand opportunity to score, as Heydon bunted to nole, who fumbled the ball. Hickey was hit and Kellum was sent up to sacrifice. He hit to Amole and Andrews crowded Heydon off third base, putting him out. Hogriever flew out and Powers fanned the

The second and last run made by Buffalo came in the fifth. Carey hit one to Madison, who made a wild throw to first, allowing Carey to go to second. He played off the base, coaxing a throw from Kelly, and the latter threw wildly to third, allowing the runner to advance to that base. Hall man placed one in deep right, which Hogriever got under, but Carey scored on the he did yesterday in a hundred years, after out. After that the visitors were retired in one, two, three order, except in the eighth inning, when Amole made a twobase hit which did not result in a run.

THE HOOSIERS DIED. In the meantime the Hoosiers continued to get men on the bases who died before they could score. In the fifth Magoon, the first man up, walked, but Seybold's hit to Hallman resulted in a fast double play. Madison then walked, but Kelly dropped one in front of the plate and was thrown out. The sixth and seventh witnessed one man left. In the eighth two men reached first. Kelly succumbed to Amole's curves by lacerating the atmosphere, and then Amole gave Heydon a base on balls Hickey hit to Hallman, who juggled the ball for an instant, giving Heydon a chance to reach second, but he recovered it in time to throw Hickey out at first. Kellum drove one to Andrews, who made a wild throw to first. Hogriever hit one full on the seam, but Shearon got under it. The ninth then came, and Powers, who was the first man up, swong on the ball with all his strength, rending it to right center for three bases. The fans arose en masse and tested their lungs, as the fears of a shutout were driven away temporarily. But they gradually returned when Halligan got in front of Magoon's hard rive and Seybold went out from third to irst. Madison tried to score the run, but

Chair Dropped on Umpire's Head. DETROIT, June 19 .- Umpire Dwyer well nigh precipitated a free fight to-day when he put Elberfeld out of the game for comparatively no cause. The shortstop had made a foul and Dwyer called it a strike. "What's the matter with you?" said Elberfeld, as he turned around, and Dwyer immediately put him out of the game. As Dwyer stood under the stand ordering the shortstop to the clubhouse a spectator dropped a chair on his head, but it did not injure him seriously. Gray, who succeeded Elberfeld, made the error in the ninth

Baseball Notes. Hallman's work at short was very fast. Gibson, the college pitcher secured from Notre Dame, will no doubt be used in today's game. This is ladies' day and a large crowd should attend the game to see if they won't bring luck to the Indianapolis team. Hartsel is convalescing from a sever ease of typhoid fever and will be able to be in the game by the first of the month. The Bisons had more luck yesterday than favors a man who draws a capital prize in a lottery. They also played good ball. Manager Watkins has all the confidence in the world that the batting eyes of the pitcher-Cross. Struck out-By Piatt, 1; won; Tenny Bell second, Iceni third. Time, Hoosiers will return in a very short time. The Hoshour baseball team challenges any sixteen-year-old club in the city. Address E. H. Hoshour, 2134 College avenue. Flynn is suffering from a swollen tendon in his leg the result of running on the side of his foot since he was injured at Chicago. Magoon played in tough luck when ne ouldn't place his drive in the ninth inning in safe territory. Halligan was lying in wait for it.

Heydon should have slid into third base n the fourth inning when Kellum bunted. Had he done so he would have been safe, the bases full and no one out.

Amole was surely very lucky yesterday He couldn't get out of a game as easy as presenting so many gifts to first.

Carey's work at first was nothing less than wonderful. In the fifth inning he jumped into the air and caught a thrown oall with one hand from Schrecongost. Magoon was really not in condition to play yesterday and he occupied a seat on bench during the practice until just a few minutes before play was called when he went to the field. He said he would play if he dropped in his tracks. To-morrow's game is the last one at home until June 29, when the Hoosiers return home to meet Cleveland for three games. Then Indianapolis goes to Cleveland for the Fourth of July series, returning home to meet Detroit, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago and Kansas City. While away on the next trip the Hoosiers play at Detroit and Buffalo.

Powers made a bad break in the second inning due to an over anxiety to hit safely. The bases were full. Amole was having hard work locating the plate and there were three balls and but one strike on him when he hit one to short retiring the side. Had he taken another ball he would no doubt have reached first, forcing in a run and then trouble might have started in earnest for the Buffalo crowd.

The Gold Democrats.

Kansas City Journal. It is possible, of course, that the national Democrats will not this year put a ticket into the field, but it is equally likely that very few adherents of that organization will vote for silver and Bryan, no matter how the issue is disposed of at the Kansas City convention. On the other hand, these dissenters, even without a ticket of their own, may not, in very large numbers, support the Republican ticket, which is much nearer to their faith than the Democratic ticket and platform will be. If they can not vote conscientiously, thousands of them will not vote at all.

Fourteen Innings and Only One Run. CHICAGO, June 19 .- To-day's game between Pittsburg and Chicago was probably the greatest exhibition of clever pitching, fine fielding and great all-around play of the League season this year. But twelve hits were made in the fourteen innings, and only two misplays, both excusable, marred the sharp fielding. Waddell struck out an even dozen of the locals, but gave eight passes, while Griffith fanned seven and allowed but one to walk. After two outs in the fourteenth, Clingman was given his base, and Griffith won his own game with a hit to left good for two bases. At-

When Superintendent Jordan, of Minneapolis, declared before the body of super-intendents assembled at their department meeting that there were more good boards than poor ones, and that for the most part they were composed of consciention capable men, he was greeted with sponta eous and hearty applause. This was be gratifying and proper, for there is lit doubt that the average school board or the average trustee desires nothing less AMERICANIZING MANILA Always Good! doubt that the average school board or than the good of the schools. The community generally recognizes the value of business experience in the administration of a school and therefore chooses business men for such positions. The instances where these men take on such self-importance as to think they are called to direct even the professional work are really rare in comparison. They come more and more to recognize the value of men and women who know their business as teachers and to intrust to them both power and responsibility. Moreover, the work of the school board is often a thankless task. It seems well to remember, and even to say sometimes, that the schools owe much New York Press. From copies of the Manila papers just received one gets a picture of that city day

by day which proves that it is no longer a "sidetracked capital." All Manila papers furnish curious and highly interesting reading. One item tells the inhabitants that there are tons of rat poison at the office of the superintendent of health, and those who are too poor to buy it can have it issued to them free of cost. Manila is overrun with rats, and rats are active agents in the spreading of the bubonic plague, which has appeared in the city. In the days of the Spanish rule the inhabitants used to keep pet snakes, whose business it was to keep down the increase in the rats. Now, however, the efforts of these snakes are supplemented by the Health Board of the city by the use of rat poison. The Health Board complains of the lack of co-operation on the part of the natives with the efforts being made to keep the city clean. In view of the appearance of the plague a general slaughter of the Elizabeth M, 8 to 5 and 3 to 5, won; Beau | rats has been ordered, and inspectors are going about to see that the order is enforced.

One of the sensations of Manila of late seems to have been the appearance there of a woman who writes for the newspapers and whose name is Miss Beebe Bean. This enterprising person wears man's clothes after the manner of Dr. Mary Walker and came out to the Philippines disguised as a cabin boy on a transport. Before Honolulu was reached the sex of the handsome cabin won; May Hempstead second, Iroquois Sixth-One mile and a furlong, on turf: boy had been discovered and Miss Bean was Earned runs-St. Louis, 2; Cincinnati, 4. When the transport reached Manila and an officer knocked at Miss Bean's door to tell her that she must go ashore under arrest he found that the captive had flown, leaving polite little notes. How she got ashore is a mystery, but there she is walking about the streets of the Luzon capital in male attire and writing "pieces" for the papers. Miss Beebe Bean is known familiarly in Manila as "Jack" and has already had exciting adventures She has been mixed up in a runaway, has saved the life of a soldier and has been laid up with a fever in a hospital. When Beebe Bean was a cabin boy on the transport sh was known as "Benny." She was working for the San Francisco papers when she con-cluded to enter upon her Philippine adventure. some interesting statistics concerning the population of the Philippines and the number of civil officials which will be required to run the government of the islands. It says: "Manila, with its $40,000,000 trade, its 110,000 population and its position as the metropolis of Luzon, will require a larger force of officials. In this island alone there are 123 cities having a population of from 9,000 to 40,000 each, in addition to 185 cities having a population of less than 9,000 and more than 4,000 each. To administer the governmental affairs of this single island, with its 3,500,000 inhabitants, will require on a conservative estimate the services of 8,500 officials at an annual cost of $3,500,000. This assigns only one official to each 1,000 of population, which official must be a sort of composite postmaster, revenue collector, judge and clerk of all work, and he must be satisfied with an average salary of $1,000 a year. In Mindanao, with its 610,000 population, there are only eight large and eighty-four small cities, but in Cebu there are twenty-four cities over 9,000 and sixty cities under that figure, with a total popu lation in the island of 504,000. The island called Panay has 671,000 souls, with thirtyfour cities over the 9,000 mark and sixty one under that figure. These are not savage shacks, but centers of industry, of agwith cathedrals, schools, palaces, telegraph and postoffices. Between 9,000,000 and 000,000 people occupy the Philippines.' The market reports of Manila are inter esting as showing the cost of sustaining life in the luxuriant tropics. The prices are quoted in Mexican silver, which is about half the value of American gold. Potatoes cost 5 cents a pound and onions 10 cents. Cabbages sell for 25 cents a head and pumpkins are worth 30 cents apiece. is cheap, but, strange to say, fruit is high. Sananas sell for 25 cents a dozen and oranges for 35 cents a dozen, while one large Chinese orange costs 22 cents, and cocoanuts are worth 8 cents each. Some of the fish are unknown to our markets. There are the dorado, the dapa, the bocadulce and asasa, which will be news to Americans. The bocadulce is the most expensive fish on the list and sells for 40 cents each. It ought to be good, for its name translated means "mouthsweet." A first grade hen in the Manila market sells for $1.10. The regulation of the markets in Manila seems to have been the object of several experiments since the American troops have occupied the city.

stamp collecting was one of the factors which made the work of the Americans harder in straightening out the market tangle. Soon after the American troops entered Manila a bureau of licenses was established, and the army officer placed in charge sought to find out the old Spanish | found an insurgent second lieutenant and a customs in this regard. But it appeared the whole army of occupation who had not a relative or friend who was engaged in either the collection of stamps or of autographs. The result was that before the officer detailed had taken charge of the bureau the stamped headlines of the documents in the old Spanish office, as well as the signatures of the officials who had authorized various decrees, had been torn off and mailed home. However, Lieutenant Lathrop, the American officer placed in charge of the bureau, seems to have been in three straight heats. Best time, 2:191/4. | a man of resources, as the following ex-

the time that the markets and slaughter houses were placed under the charge of the license bureau the markets had been allowed to practically run themselves, and had become so abominably filthy as to seriously menace the public health. The Divisoria market in Binondo and Tondo was the only one in which any pretense of cleanliness was made. "When the bureau took charge of the markets and slaughter houses its first care was to put both services on a paying basis, and remove the accumulated filth from the markets. "Finally the collection of the market taxes and rents was, as an experiment, farmed out to Crespulo Leus for the period of one month at a rate much in excess of any that the office had up to that date been able to collect. As the inmates of the markets could not see any particular reason for keeping them even ordinarily clean, and regarded the payment of imposts of any kind as a relic of Spanish tyranny, Mr. Leus did not make his fortune during the few days he posed as a government contractor. During the time he was not wrestling with the responsibilities of his job or dodging missiles round the outskirts of the markets, he spent his time telling hard-luck stories to the head of the bureau and thinking over the morrow. One afternoon, four or five days after he had been awarded the contract, he hastily entered the office and closed the door just in time to keep a vociferous and indignant committee of market people from intruding on the quiet of the office. The smoothness of the back of his white coat was relieved by chunks of mud and other adhesive su stances until it resembled a group of volcanic hills in an Arizona desert. As soon as he recovered his breath he confessed to having 'that tired feeling' and asked to be released from his contract, and as he was evidently rather the worse for wear his re-quest was granted and the incident closed. Mr. Leus, previous to his contracting experience, was somewhat of an oracle an the Tagalos, but for some reason they pear to have lost confidence in him, and the only excitement he's had since the war began was to be confined in Anda-street station for a few days and subsec figure as principal to

The markets now are under the direct control of the military, and Corporal Har-ris is in charge. According to the Manila papers he has worked a great reform.

Things are now cleanly and orderly, and a new market building is shortly to be built.

Expensive Mistake. Kansas City Journal.

As a result of a poorly written telegram or perhaps a weatherbound wire, one o Kansas City's best telegraph operators is seriously considering a change in his vocation. A few days ago a message was filed from a small town in Oklahoma, ordering 1,500 pounds of harvesting twine to be shipped to him. For some unaccountable reason the operator who received the message rendered it so that it read "ship 15,000 pounds of twine," and at the present time the operator is endeavoring to find a mar-disposal in Oklahoma. Another amusing incident due to bad writing recently occurred in a dispatch to an Eastern paper giving an account of the arrest of several parties in Kansas "for shoving the queer," which was rendered

"for shaving the queen." An Historic Place.
